

To: Whom it may concern,

The New Mexico Emergency Services Council is currently seeking companies interested in making contributions to charitable non-profit organizations for our 2007 fundraising.

The council is responsible for organizing and coordinating training, certification, and team cooperation for search and rescue, disaster preparedness, and provides a platform for interagency participation in the day to day emergency services of New Mexico's volunteers and professional organizations.

The organization is composed of almost 80 search and rescue groups and a board of directors. We hold an annual training conference called ESCAPE, where members from teams can cross train and learn skills available elsewhere in the system.

While the council is a subordinate component of the New Mexico Department of Public Safety, it is not a funded activity in the state budget. Like other volunteer organizations, we are compelled to seek out or own funding through contributions, donations, and grants.

The New Mexico Emergency Services council is an IRS Non-profit 501 (c) (3) organization and as such, the contributions are able to be used in the defrayment of tax liability. Should you wish to aid us with such a contribution, we would be happy to issue a letter of donation to support your use of this privilege under the law.

If your company should be interested in exploring a partnership with us for the 2007 calendar year, please contact me so we can explore the necessary details.

Respectfully,

Dave Kenneke, President
NMESC Board of Directors
